People v. Miller, 4 Kan. App.2d 135, 603 P.2d 163 (1979). That case likewise involved the "learned professional" formulation of the Kansas rule. As an initial matter it should be noted that the defendant in Miller had been convicted by a jury, not a trial judge sitting without a jury. Though the reviewing court did not rule upon that factor, it should be noted that the Kansas Supreme Court had previously held that where the trial judge had been the finder of fact in his own case, he would be less susceptible to the kind of influence or motive to prejudice the defendant that is present where a jury had decided the facts. State v. Parker, 198 Kan. at 644-45, 426 P.2d at 849-50. If such influence was present where the jury passes the facts, the reviewing court must be even less hospitable to the existence of it, where the judge is the finder of fact. Second, in the most recent case decided by the Kansas Supreme Court, the court has continued to apply the rule to determinations by trial judges, as well as to jury verdicts. State v. Williams, 225 Kan. at 371, 590 P.2d at 723. That case, while not involving the question of bias, nevertheless points up the Kansas Court's understanding of the policy. Third, as earlier discussed, the Oklahoma Supreme Court has explicitly declined to follow the "learned professional" formulation. It has instead followed the reasoning of the Nevada Supreme Court which holds that bias exists when the judge forms his own personal opinion about the evidence and rules in favor of the prosecution. Mason v. State, 675 P.2d 524, 526 (Okl.Cr.1984); Woodruff v. State,
