Connie and Jason's relationship is rather strange. On both ends of the spectrum-awkward and possessive. But it all begun long ago. Both too old for that, they did not want to die together or alone. But one person can not accept the other's mistakes and emotional problems. That's why someone has to die.

Jason's indecision about killing and the emotional problems he's been for weeks led to fear, anger, jealousy, hatred and rage, that Connie was a hostage. In the night, he seemed to lose his mind. Grabbing his gun, he shot half-automatic on himself. In the blood, Connie has run away from the scene of death like a mad beast. Hurt, scared and was found along with his camera the next day.
